2 Croatia’s Eye of Istria

Port: Rovinj

Arrival Method: TENDER

Departure: 18:00

Squeezed onto a tiny yin-yang island of terracotta roofs and green gardens, pretty little Rovinj is the belle of Croatia. Pastel-coloured houses teeter over the crystal-clear waters of the Adriatic and climb up the hillside to the iconic bell tower of St. Euphemia Church, a permanent reminder of the city’s Venetian roots. Delve into the maze of narrow streets lost in time, galleries and museums overhung with wooden balconies and Italianate shutters. Circle the city in a flat-bottomed batana fishing boat or kayak around the pine-forested shores of outlying islands, forage for local wines and honey in timeless markets and taste the flavours of the Istrian Peninsula in waterfront cafes.

3 Queen Ancona of the Italian Adriatic

Port: Ancona

Arrival Method: DOCK

Arrival: 08:00

Departure: 18:00

Memories of maritime glory echo through the winding streets of charming Ancona, where handsome palazzos and elegant churches bear witness. Established by the Greeks on Italy's outer elbow, the ancient harbour anchors undulating hillsides and rugged Adriatic coastline peppered with fishermen's caves and pearlescent beaches. Cast your eyes towards the rising sun through the Arch of Trajan, Roman gateway to the east, and watch life unfold at ageless waterfront trattorias and cobble piazzas. Lion-flanked San Ciriaco Cathedral stands sentinel on a hill above the port, rewarding those who make the journey with oil painting scenes as sunset bathes all in an amber glow. Further north, the UNESCO historic centre of Urbino beckons with its Renaissance walls that survive virtually intact.

Head south to find numerous fine beaches (amongst the best in Italy) dotted with countless coves and bays, particularly in pretty Polignano a Mare. Puglia's capital is an easy catapult to the region's famous trulli in Alberobello, the UNESCO town with 1500 conical houses or choose to make your way to cinematic Matera, where the limestone cliffs are peppered in ancient caves, many now masquerading as chic restaurants.

Italian and Mediterranean influences flavour the cuisine, where gelato and brodetto accompany fresh Adriatic seafood. Uphill, the Church of our Lady of Remedy affords spectacular views of Kotor's red-tiled UNESCO World Heritage rooftops, a manmade jewel amongst landscapes where the inspired will wander.

Woodcarvers and weavers flaunt their wares in covered markets, stalls piled high with olive oil and fragrant herbs from the surrounding hillsides.
